But the main reason to recognize the centennial of her birth is her special gift for raising the conscience of the nation. As a wife, mother of five and First Lady, she seemed most proud of her capacity for "self-reliance and developing into an individual." Her self-propulsion was fueled by her own sense of humanity. Acting as the "eyes and ears" of a disabled President, she traveled the country to expose the plight of the poor and disadvantaged. After her husband's death, she labored on behalf of war refugees. President Truman called her "First Lady of the World."	False		1984-10-18	TX 1-435029

Despite these punishments, there were still a few people who helped Jews even after 1939. . . . During the earlier period, the most common form of help was the purchase of extra amounts of food, since Jews were no longer allowed to shop. . . . Herr Otto, still a grocer today, described how Frau Schmidt . . . "suddenly one day asked for two pounds of butter instead of her usual one. I knew of course that the extra pound was for the Mandels who lived upstairs." The Jewish families, digging into their savings, paid for the purchased goods themselves. Later some of them began bartering household items and sold off their possessions as the financial need arose. Throughout the thirties, Christina and her brother Robert, owners of the bakery, continued baking challah on Friday, which she secretly delivered to Jewish customers late at night. She continued this practice until 1941 . . . whenever she could, so that "they could still celebrate the Friday night meal." Frau Kramer described how her mother would buy extra rolls and when she walked by the homes of certain Jews, she would throw them through a window left open for that purpose. It Also Enabled Her To Find Useful Friends, Low-Cost Or Free Accommodations, Envious Invitations and Free Film and Candy Bars. Her Pluck Helped Her Gain A Private Audience With Indira Gandhi, To Be the Guest of the Mayor of Sydney, Australia, and To Be Presented To the King of Tonga. Unfortunately (FROM WHOM SHE TRIED BUT FAILED TO WIN AN INVITATION TO GO FISHING), She Also Took On Her Journey A Mind Stocked With Cliches. All Her Experiences Were Tested Against Banal Expectations and Forced To Yield Up Either A Yea Or A Nay. In Iran, Having Been Rescued From A Night Alone In the Streets of Teheran By Several Strange Men, She Worried About Kidnapping, Rape and Terrorism. In New Guinea, Having Been Served A Local Stew, She Fretted About Its Contents and Had Visions of Cannibalism. In India She Was Entranced By the Taj Mahal ("A Massive Jeweled Crown, Resting On Velvet Tiers of Marble") and Revolted By the Poverty, Filth and Disease.
